Letter from Our CEO

Dear Friends,

I am delighted to connect with you for the first time as Kripalu's CEO and President. Kripalu has been part of my life for more than two decades. I still remember my first visit, and the joy, community, and deep renewal I found here that has brought me back ever since. In the years since, I've been honored to serve on the Board, as Trustee Emerita, and now as CEO. Each role has deepened my belief in what this special place offers.

For more than 50 years, Kripalu, an educational non-profit, has drawn on ancient wisdom that fits modern life. What may be a popular wellness trend today is, for us, part of a proven lineage: how to move, rest, meditate, eat, breathe, and connect with one another. These fundamentals have never been more essential. My hope is to make this wisdom easier to reach, with pathways that support you however and whenever you need it.

The season ahead is a natural time to begin. Kripalu offers a place to pause during the busy holiday season and a sanctuary for winter's quiet invitation to turn inward. If you've been here before, come home to yourself again. If you've never visited, we would love to meet you.

With gratitude,
Erin R. Tunnicliffe
CEO & President

Pause. Soften. Nourish.

A Winter Warming Practice

BY JESS FREY
Kripalu Lead Faculty

Restorative yoga aligns with winter's natural rhythm—a season to slow down and turn inward. Create a cozy space with warmth, soft light, and extra blankets. Let your body, mind, and heart soften into rest. We welcome you to try this gentle winter warming flow from Lead Faculty Jess Frey.

1 Surfboard
Place a blanket lengthwise on your mat with a rolled portion beneath your ankles. Lower your torso over the bolster, bending elbows into a gentle cactus shape. Rest one cheek down and allow your whole body to soften into the support beneath you. Stay for several minutes with slow belly breaths. To come out, gently press back to a seat and notice the nourishing echo of pause.

2 Supported Fish
Place a bolster lengthwise on your mat with a folded blanket supporting your head and a rolled blanket beneath your knees. Open your arms into a gentle cactus shape. If desired, place a blanket over your belly for warmth. Receive gentle breaths, softening with each exhale. To come out, roll gently to one side before sitting up. Pause with a hand on your heart to notice the quiet within.

3 Supported Legs on a Chair
Place a sturdy chair on your mat and lie on your back with your legs resting on the chair, knees bent at 90 degrees. Support your head with a folded blanket and rest a folded blanket over your belly for gentle grounding. Relax your arms to the side and allow your breath to lengthen. After several minutes, hug your knees to your chest, roll to one side, and slowly come to a seat.

As snow blankets the Berkshires, a different kind of journey begins. Forest trails grow quiet. Morning light stretches across frozen fields, and the world seems to breathe a little slower. It's a season that reminds us to pause—to rest, reflect, and return to ourselves.

At Kripalu, winter becomes an invitation to step away from the demands of everyday life and embrace practices that restore body, mind, and spirit. Whether you come for a day or stay for a longer retreat, our Retreat & Renewal experience gives you the freedom to shape your day with yoga, meditation, nourishing meals, inspiring workshops, time in nature, and space to simply be.

Begin your morning with yoga as snow falls outside the windows. Embrace the peaceful beauty of nature through a guided meditative hike across our grounds. Then, restore your body with seasonal meals, quiet reflection, or a Healing Arts treatment. However you choose to spend your time here, you'll leave feeling rested, grounded, and renewed by the simple rhythms of the season.

SEASONAL OFFERINGS

Throughout the winter, Retreat & Renewal features rotating workshops led by Kripalu faculty and guest teachers, offering fresh, seasonal perspectives on yoga, meditation, Ayurveda, creativity, mindful living, and personal growth.

GATHER IN WARMTH

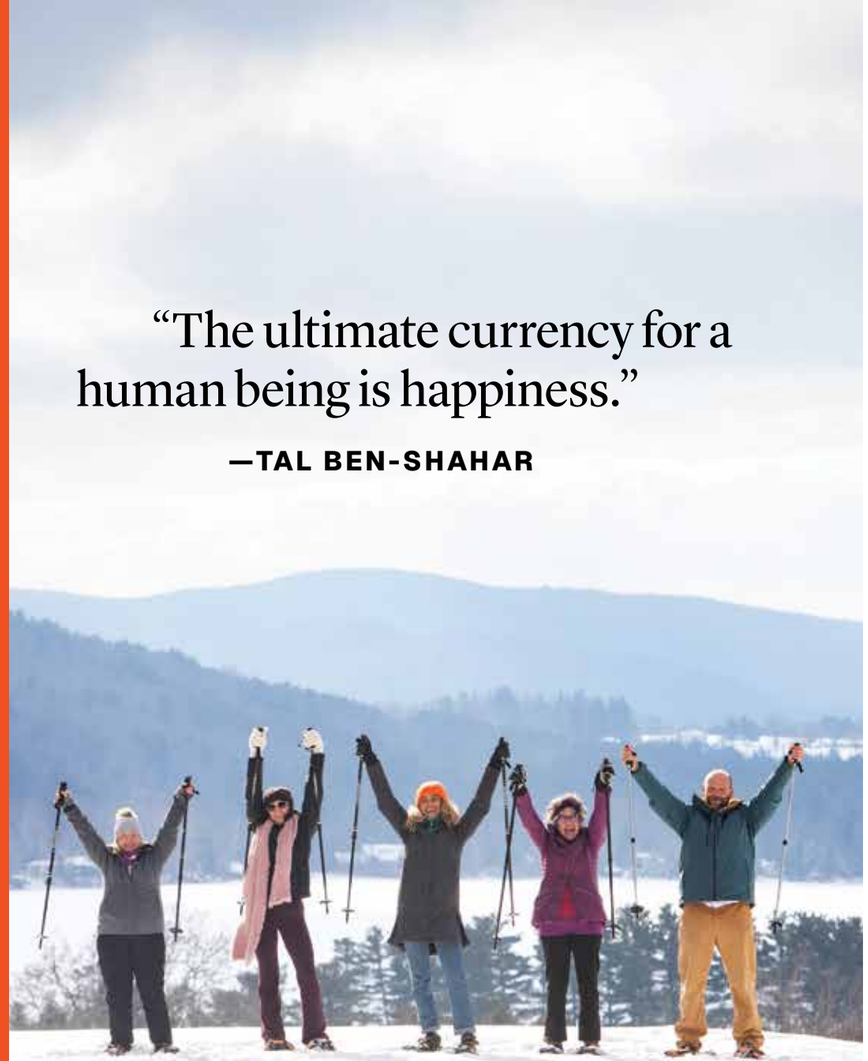

Winter naturally draws us closer. Around shared tables, in reading rooms, during evening programs, and in quiet conversations between yoga classes, you'll find a welcoming community of people who have come seeking many of the same things: rest, perspective, connection, and space to begin again.

Contemplative Week

January 4–8 | Monday–Friday

Experience one of Kripalu's most cherished winter traditions. During Contemplative Week, the campus embraces a shared rhythm of quiet through guided yoga, meditation, reflective workshops, and three daily silent meals.

Healing Arts: A Season of Integration

Winter is a season of quiet restoration. Beneath the frozen ground, roots gather energy, exchanging nutrients through an unseen network that prepares the forest for spring. Nature reminds us that healing rarely happens in isolation—it unfolds through relationship. We are no different. In the midst of caring for others and meeting the demands of daily life, our bodies, minds, and spirits long to reconnect with the deeper sources of nourishment that sustain us.

At Kripalu Healing Arts, some of our most transformative experiences arise when healing traditions meet. Massage enriched by subtle energy work. Acupuncture paired with vibrational healing. Ayurvedic wisdom integrated with lifestyle coaching. Soul Guidance that brings intuitive insight into conversation with embodied practice. These experiences reflect our belief that healing is rarely confined to one modality—it unfolds through thoughtful integration, guided by practitioners with the discernment to know what is needed in the moment.

GO DEEPER

True transformation sometimes asks us to go deeper—to move beneath the surface into the mystery and wonder of our inner world and reconnect with the deeper essence of who we are. The quiet backdrop of winter offers a special opportunity to explore Kripalu's range of ancient wisdom and intuitive practices, from divination and mediumship to Vedic astrology and Tarot.

Our newest offerings weave together intuitive tools, spiritual practices, and wisdom traditions to meet you where you are—inviting you to look beneath the surface, explore deeper questions, and reconnect with the inner wisdom that makes you who you are. Whether you are seeking clarity, reconnecting with your values, or exploring your deeper purpose, these new experiences invite you to listen to the wisdom within and around you.

Nurturing Connections Through Yoga and Mindfulness

Kripalu partnered with Mass Mentoring—supported by generous funding from the Yawkey Foundation—to host a transformative half-day yoga and mindfulness event in Boston. Designed to deepen bonds between youth and adult mentors, the event embraced trauma-informed wellness practices, bringing mentor-mentee pairs together for guided yoga, seated reflection, and shared meals.

The Jean Yawkey Center, home to the event, provided a supportive and inspiring setting that reflects the Yawkey Foundation's long-standing commitment to youth and community well-being.

"Practices like yoga and mindfulness help build resilience, emotional awareness, and healthy coping skills. These are tools especially valuable as young people navigate stress, uncertainty, and personal growth," said Alicia Verity, Chief Executive Officer of the Yawkey Foundation.

"Yoga isn't about performance or flexibility. It's about helping people feel more present, connected, and at ease in themselves," said Sam Chase, Kripalu Lead Faculty.

Participants left the event feeling relaxed and recharged. This event is a direct expression of Kripalu's mission: to help people and communities realize their full potential through the transformative wisdom and power of yoga—not just for those who can visit campus, but for communities across Massachusetts and beyond. Moments like this are made possible by donor support. When you give to Kripalu, you help create ripples of connection that reach far beyond a single afternoon.
