

An Invitation from Kate and Joel Feldman

We sold our big home and moved this last fall. Our lives are quieter now. We have time to meditate upon next steps, what our values are, and who we want to be “when we grow up,” and time to turn toward our two beautiful granddaughters, Zoe and Arden.

We are contemplating retirement. Are you? We are contemplating what it means to be in the last third of our lives. Are you?

How do you do this? When is it time? What is this pull coming from within that says, Slow down; be quiet; don't rush anymore? We notice ourselves thinking about the life of service we have lived for nearly 50 years, the review of which is poignant, funny, and satisfying. We notice with wonder and appreciation the younger generation of teachers, yogis, and relationship experts rising up behind us. They are bright, full of passion, wisdom, and incredible energy to help and serve. For them we are so grateful! We hope they see us as wise resources, not as competitors.

Our program, Deepening Your Love, is coming up February 15–18: Valentine's weekend. We have been presenting this workshop since 1989! We can't believe it. It's different every time.

This time, we are thinking how important it is to present ourselves—our stories, our personal experience, wisdom, and depth. We won't be presenting a formulaic program. It's time to dig deeper. The times, the culture, our lives, and our eldering call this forth from us.

Join us to experience a community of couples digging deeply for love!
